How can we strengthen and grow Sheffield's local food economy?

Sheffield already has a thriving food economy combining a range of interests from local food growing and production through to manufacturing, retail and a thriving local restaurant scene. On the eve of Sheffield's third Food Festival we want to hear your views about how to bring these interests together to sustain and build on Sheffield's food economy for the future.

This event is an opportunity to explore the potential benefits and challenges of working together across the private, public and voluntary sectors to create a single vision to build on and strengthen Sheffield's food economy. This is an opportunity to explore key issues including local food production, local procurement, connecting local interests across the food supply chain, sustainability, health and wellbeing and environmental impacts.

A panel of local stakeholders, representing different interests and sectors will present their answer to the question:

'How can we strengthen and grow Sheffield's food economy?'

You will then be invited to contribute to a round table debate and share thoughts, insight, ideas, benefits and challenges which will inform the next phase of key city strategy The Sheffield Food Plan.
